

BROKERAGE FIRM IS MERGED WITH BOATMEN'S BANK

Depository Takes Over Kauffman, Smith & Co., Inc., and Will Retain Stock and Bond Business.

TOM K. SMITH TO BE NEW PRESIDENT

Julius Reinholdt Selected for Chairman of Board—Consolidation Effective in About a Week.

Consolidation of Kauffman, Smith & Co., Inc., a banking investment house, with Boatmen's National Bank, to provide a general investment department and later with the bank, succeeding Julius W. Reinholdt, who will be made chairman of the board, a new position. Harold M. Kauffman, president of Kauffman, Smith & Co., will take charge of the new securities department and later will be president of a corporation handling this business, to be formed by the bank. The projected company may be called the Boatmen's National Co.

Publication of the fact that the consolidation was pending, was made exclusively in the City Edition of yesterday's Post-Dispatch, following a noon meeting of the bank's directors, at which the deal was considered. Afterwards it was announced by Reinholdt that the contract had been signed and the merger ratified by the bank directors. The consolidation, it was understood, was initiated by Reinholdt.

After it was chartered to expand its business as a national bank in 1928, the Boatmen's Bank established a trust department and it desired to round out its fiscal facilities with a securities department. Reinholdt, who had been in this field for a long time, had been in the past that the Boatmen's would merge with some other bank or banks, in view of the several recent important mergers of the kind in St. Louis. Termining them as unfounded, officers of Boatmen's looked on yesterday's announcement as stopping the rumors.

Brokers Bought Outright. Kauffman, Smith & Co. is being purchased outright by the bank at its wholesale inventory price, a figure which has not been determined. Its offices on the third floor of the Security Building will be vacated and the new securities department will be set up in the banking quarters at Broadway and Olive street, but the entire personnel of Kauffman, Smith & Co. will be retained. Reinholdt said in a statement that the bank had acquired a going business. There have been rumors in the past that the Boatmen's would merge with some other bank or banks, in view of the several recent important mergers of the kind in St. Louis. Termining them as unfounded, officers of Boatmen's looked on yesterday's announcement as stopping the rumors.

Boatmen's Bank had resources of $22,227,417 in its last published statement, as of March 27, and deposits of $24,550,431. In the depository's early history it had no capital stock but in 1926 capital holders paid in $400,000. This is all that has ever been paid in, but the capital now $2,000,000, was increased to that amount from earnings by a stock dividend of 400 per cent in 1927, when $800,000 in cash also was distributed among the stockholders. Earnings also accounted for the surplus of $750,000 and the undivided profits of $532,454 in the latest report.

It is expected that the capital will be increased later to care for the addition of the investment department, Reinholdt said. This increase may be $500,000 or $1,000,000.

Kauffman, Smith & Co. has $500,000 capital and $500,000 surplus. It was established in 1915. Besides Smith and Kauffman its officers are: Royal D. Kercheval, vice president; Charles C. Allen Jr., vice president and counsel; R. W. Stumpe, treasurer; and C. W. R. Gule, secretary. Leroy C. Bryan is vice president and cashier of the bank, which has 10 other officers and a board of 14 directors.

Oldest Missouri Bank. The oldest bank in Missouri, Boatmen's was established in 1847 as the Boatmen's Savings and Loan Association, taking its name from the picturesque river traffic of the day. Smith will be its sixth president. Preceding him were: Adam L. Mills, 1847-1854; Sullivan Blood, 1854-1871; Rufus J. Lackland, 1871-1910; Edwards Whitaker, 1910-1926; Reinholdt, 1926-1929.

The late Mr. Whitaker was senior partner of the investment house of Whitaker & Co. Smith is the son-in-law of Rolla Wells, chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of this district and former Mayor and receiver of the former United Railways Co. Smith, one of the youngest bank presidents in St. Louis, was born at Glenwood, Schuyler County, Mo., 46 years ago, the son of a hardware and farm implement merchant. He was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1904, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and had charge of the university's exhibit at the World's Fair here that summer. The next year he started as a salesman and buyer for the Little & Hays Investment Co. and in 1910 he was made secretary of the William R.

Compton Co., afterwards becoming treasurer. He and Kauffman founded their present business five years later. For a year he was chairman of the Mississippi Valley group of the Investment Bankers' Association of America and for three years he was a governor of the association and vice president one year. A trustee of the Community Fund, he was chairman of its Budget Committee for a year. He has been president of the University and Noonday clubs and is a director of the Industrial Club. He belongs to the St. Louis Country Club. He was married to Miss Jane Howard Wells in 1918. They have three children.

By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 25.—The Missouri Supreme Court, en banc, today reversed and remanded for new trial the case of Newell M. The case was reversed because the jury in the trial in Polk County Circuit Court, where the case was taken on change of venue, failed to agree on the sentence and the trial judge pronounced the penalty. Under the law of 1907 the jury alone has power to fix the punishment in first degree murder cases, the Court opinion pointed out.

HOOVER ASKS FOR RULING ON RIVER CONTROL SYSTEM

Uncertain Whether He Has Right to Alter Plan, as Law May Have Settled Issue.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 25.—President Hoover has asked Attorney General Mitchell for a legal opinion whether the plan and method of Mississippi River flood control have not already been conclusively determined by the flood control act and the executive decisions of President Coolidge issued pursuant to the terms of that act.

In making this announcement yesterday in response to inquiries of newspaper correspondents, the chief executive said a legal opinion was necessary before the administration could go into the merits or demerits of the suggestions made by a group of Senators and Representatives from the Mississippi River Valley states.

These members of Congress recently placed before the administration a brief requesting that the proposed contracts for initiation of work be suspended pending either reconsideration of the plans and authorities under the Jones act. In addition they suggested that the Government should purchase floodage rights over lands along stretches of the river where there is to be no additional water flow out of the main channel.

With respect to the first suggestion, Mr. Hoover called attention to the fact that the special committee heard set up to decide between the Mississippi River Commission and the Jadin plan had decided in favor of the Jadin plan and that its recommendation had been promulgated by a definite order issued by President Coolidge.

As to the other proposition, the President said that where the United States was required by law to purchase land or floodage or pay damages to a private party, it was added that money had been scheduled for such payments out of funds thus far appropriated.

The brief of the Mississippi Valley members of Congress recently passed by the President to the Secretary of War Good, as the flood control work is to be prosecuted under the direction of the War Department. He is to study the proposition and report to Mr. Hoover.

MELLON REBUFFED 20 AMENDMENTS TO TARIFF BILL

Lucas' Selection Adopted by House

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 25.—The Republican tariff bill has been started on the road to passage in the House.

Chairman Hawley of the Ways and Means Committee, in charge of the bill, and his Republican colleagues on the committee quickly took advantage of the priority granted them by a special rule adopted yesterday, 234 to 198, giving preference to the committee amendments. Backed by the huge Republican majority, they successfully sponsored more than 20 of the 91 amendments favorably reported by the committee earlier in the day.

Although Democrats spoke against the amendments in several instances, the minority members generally appeared resigned to the stringency of the rule they had strenuously opposed and they allowed the amendments to go through with only weak protests.

On some changes, not a dissenting voice was heard. Among the amendments approved was one increasing the duties on live cattle to 2 cents a pound on cattle under 800 pounds and 2 1/2 cents on heavier animals as against 15 cents on those under 1050 pounds and 2 cents on those above that weight, as at present.

Other amendments approved would increase the rates on butter and butter substitutes to 14 cents from 12 cents a pound, and the duty on dried skimmed milk and dried buttermilk to 2 1/2 cents from 1 1/2 cents a pound.

Representative Hull (Rep.), Wisconsin, attempted to put the bill on the calendar, but the measure was rejected.

The rates on cotton shirt collars and cuffs not specially provided for, now dutiable at 35 per cent, were changed to 30 cents a dozen pieces, 10 per cent and 25 cents. The 30 per cent duty on cotton belts and ropes for transmission of power was advanced to 40 per cent. The duty on matches was increased from 11 cents a gross of boxes of not more than 100 matches to 20 cents a gross, and the duty on acid rates were boosted to 25 per cent from 1 1/2 cents a pound.

The duty on bristles was reduced from 7 to 3 cents a pound; cotton wiping rags received a new classification, 10 cents a pound, and cotton gloves at 10 cents a dozen, which the bill had placed on the free list, were made dutiable at 60 per cent.

Five Democrats joined 229 Republicans in voting for the rule. The bill was then passed by a vote of 234 to 198.

FORD OPPOSES MODIFYING DRY LAWS, HE TELLS HOOVER

Prohibition Is Here to Stay, He Says After Lunch on White House.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 25.—Henry Ford wants to see the prohibition laws enforced rather than modified.

That was the burden—as far as he let it be known afterward, at a late afternoon luncheon conversation with the President Hoover yesterday at the White House. "Prohibition is here to stay," he told newspaper men as he emerged from the White House. "Prohibition must be enforced. There can be no turning back. I do not believe in the country's modification."

Replying to questions, he also expressed the opinion that the Diesel type engine had not been sufficiently developed for him to consider its use in airplanes and automobiles. He said that though the gasoline engine, being much cleaner, was better suited to automobiles, though cheaper to operate, were too heavy as now developed for use in airplanes.

MOUNTAIN WOMAN, INSULTED, CLUBS MERCHANT TO DEATH

Farmer's Daughter, Seized in Tennessee, Killed and Buried.

By the Associated Press. GEORGETOWN, Tenn., May 25.—Improper advances to a customer, a 25-year-old mountain woman, led to the death yesterday of Lee Atchley, a grocer, here. He was clubbed into insensibility Thursday night by the woman, Eva Coffey.

Witnesses said the merchant's wife and 7-year-old daughter were in the store when the woman entered to pay for 5 cents' worth of candy which she had purchased earlier in the day. Atchley grasped her wrists, witnesses said. She struggled free and fled.

Within a few minutes she returned, and meeting Atchley at the entrance of his store, attacked him with a heavy spoke from a wagon wheel. The merchant collapsed from blows and was taken to the hospital by Dr. J. T. Smith, who said the man apparently had been drinking. No warrant had been sworn out against Miss Coffey today and the Sheriff's office in Decatur, County Seat, (Ga.) said it was not known if any action was contemplated until the inquest had been completed.

Kansas City Fights Newman's Demand for Higher Trolley Fare; "Service-at-Cost" Agreement Fails

St. Louis Street Car System's Sister Company Goes Over City's Head, Appeals to State Commission for Higher Valuation and 10-Cent Instead of 8-Cent Fare.

By BOYD F. CARROLL, Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 25.—Kansas City Public Service Co., sister company of the St. Louis Public Service Co., through large stock holdings in both companies by the City Utilities Co., Delaware holding company of J. K. Newman and banking associates, is before the State Public Service Commission for a valuation hearing and fare increase, after failure of a "service at cost" type of franchise to produce the desired financial results for the company in Kansas City.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. sought a similar "service-at-cost" or guaranteed profit form of franchise from St. Louis about three years ago, to run 30 years, but failed when public opposition developed to binding the city to a guaranteed profit franchise plan.

Mayor Miller, who originally favored that grant, later reversed his position and stated the wise course for the city was to wait until the transportation survey had been made and the city knew what service it needed before considering any new franchise.

Agreements Have No Effect. The situation in Kansas City once more emphasizes the important fact that agreements between the company books and make recommendations on changes in fares, schedules and operating practices. The franchise permitted the city to buy the company property, by condemnation through the courts at a price to be fixed by the Public Service Commission.

A three-year bus franchise, providing for a 10-cent fare with transfer privilege between street cars and a bus feeder line, also was granted. This expired last December and the company operated its buses on a day-to-day permit. Sinks Relief From Obligations. Early in November last year the company notified the city that unless it was relieved of certain franchise obligations, such as paving between its tracks, viaduct rentals and street-cleaning taxes, it would apply for an increase in fare.

It presented its case to the Chamber of Commerce and various civic organizations, but without success, and Jan. 25 the directors voted to file application for a fare increase with the State Public Service Commission.

The case was filed at Jefferson City Feb. 11, the schedule setting up a one-fare area over Greater Kansas City and applying a straight 10-cent fare to all street cars and feeder buses.

The commission is asked to determine the physical value of the property for rate-making purposes. No date has been set for the hearing, although the company has been notified that the commission would start its audit next month.

Rise Unavoidable, City Says. The city contends that an increase in fare is unwarranted; that according to the company's own figures it actually is enjoying its best year since obtaining the property on foreclosure in 1926. Its figures for the first four months, available last week, show an earning of more than 6 per cent, the city asserts.

The company before the receiver-ship had operated under a 5-cent fare franchise, which would have expired in 18 years. However, it obtained a 2 1/2-cent increase through the aid of the Federal Court and the Public Service Commission, before the new franchise was granted.

The new franchise had failed to produce the return agreed upon and it will be seen that the agreed basis of valuation went overboard in the case, as a new valuation was asked for and has been ordered by the Commission. In its application, the company presented inventories varying from $37,294,702 as the book values, to $51,116,000 on the basis of reproduction new, less depreciation.

Kansas City, which expected to gain additional powers through the new form of franchise, is before the Commission opposing the fare increase, and the Commission may junk the elaborate agreement covering rates, valuation and return if it sees fit after hearing the evidence.

"Hey, Babe! Clean up on this!" Grover Loeffler of Champagne, Ill., where the University of Illinois is located, called to his wife, Deputy Sheriff testifies they stood outside Loeffler's with a search warrant and his admittance.

When they finally got in, testified, they found less than half pint of alcohol in a bottle and empty bottles similar to it in which four high school students testified they had purchased, hot from Loeffler through a man.

Loeffler was convicted in Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday, although he was there to hear the verdict, although he had held a night away from the court.

Loeffler failed to appear yesterday morning to hear the verdict of the testimony. "Babe" also failed to appear, but witnesses said they both in East St. Louis yesterday.

Two weeks before the Loeffler's place, Sheriff Sheriff Champagnon found two intoxicated students in his place. They told him, he testified, "spiked" with alcohol bought from Loeffler and had climbed into a car by mistake, falling asleep there.

The testimony of the students was that they had their money for a party with Loeffler, a shoe salesman, had waited outside Loeffler's while Cooper purchased the liquor. The students said they were in the place, William Norton, William Lin and Max Cline, son of State's Attorney of Champagne County.

Miller stated, in addition, that half pint of alcohol, admitted evidence, was bought by him from Loeffler. His testimony introduced the defense, which stated he bought no alcohol from the defendant.

He explained the contradiction by saying that Loeffler had him for a machine and told him, "If you testify against me, I will have some of my boys come down to Chicago and bump some of your boys." Cooper testified Loeffler told him he could buy liquor for a dollar and a half. Loeffler is the third resident of Champagne tried on charges of selling liquor to students. He has a previous conviction on a Harrison drug charge and will be sentenced to the United States Marshal's office.

Grover Loeffler of Champlain, Ill., Disappears, but Trial Goes On.

"Hey, Babe! Clean up everything!" Grover Loeffler of Champlain, Ill., where the University of Illinois is located, called to his wife, Deputy Sheriff testified, they stood outside Loeffler's door with a search warrant and a search of the premises.

When they finally got in, they testified, they found less than half pint of alcohol in a teapot and empty bottles similar to the ones in which four high school students testified they had purchased alcohol from Loeffler through another man.

Loeffler was convicted in Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday, although he was there to hear the verdict. After court had held a night session yesterday morning to hear the testimony of the students, Loeffler failed to appear.

Two weeks before the trial, Loeffler's place, Sheriff Sheriff Champlain found two intoxicated high school students in his car. They told him, he testified, they had been drinking near the "spiked" with alcohol bought from Loeffler and had climbed into the car by mistake, falling asleep there.

The testimony of the four students was that they had pooled their money for a party with a man in East St. Louis, named Loeffler, a shoe salesman, who had waited outside Loeffler's place while Cooper purchased the alcohol. The students are Alfred Miller, William Norton, William Cooper and Max Cline, son of the State's Attorney of Champlain County.

Miller stated, in addition, that half pint of alcohol, admitted evidence, was bought by him from Loeffler. His testimony contradicted an affidavit introduced in the defense, which stated he bought no alcohol from the defendant.

He explained the contradiction by saying that Loeffler had told him for a machine ride and that two weeks would come down to Chicago and bump somebody off. Cooper testified Loeffler told him he could be run out of town for a dollar and a half. Loeffler is the third resident of Champlain in charges of selling liquor to students. He has a previous conviction on a Harrison drug charge and will be sentenced with the United States Marshal.

BRITISH ENVOY WILLING TO DROP LIQUOR PRIVILEGE

Ernie Howard Says He Ready to Co-operate if U. S. Intimates a Desire to Cancel Right.

PEAKING PERSONALLY AND NOT FOR CORPS

Statement Incidental to Publication of Article in Letters Between Ambassador and Prohibitionist.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Sir Ernie Howard, the British Ambassador, personally is willing to relinquish the time-honored privilege of importing liquor into the United States enjoyed by foreign diplomats.

"If the United States intimates a desire to cancel the privilege," he had said in New York last night, "I am glad to co-operate with other members of the diplomatic corps in complying."

It was made clear in a statement issued by the British ambassador that the ambassador, who had been the subject of a personal opinion expressed by Sir Ernie Howard, was not speaking on behalf of the corps.

The ambassador's statement was given in a letter to the State Department, which was published in a number of newspapers this morning dealing with correspondence between Sir Ernie and James T. Carter, Virginia lumberman.

Miller stated, in addition, that half pint of alcohol, admitted evidence, was bought by him from Loeffler. His testimony contradicted an affidavit introduced in the defense, which stated he bought no alcohol from the defendant.

He explained the contradiction by saying that Loeffler had told him for a machine ride and that two weeks would come down to Chicago and bump somebody off. Cooper testified Loeffler told him he could be run out of town for a dollar and a half. Loeffler is the third resident of Champlain in charges of selling liquor to students. He has a previous conviction on a Harrison drug charge and will be sentenced with the United States Marshal.

REALTY DEALER HELD IN INQUIRY INTO BANK HOLDUP

Alfred A. Oliver, Ex-Convict, Arrested in Richmond Heights After Talking to Pair in Stolen Auto.

Alfred Oliver, 39 years old, who served four years in Leavenworth penitentiary for train robbery, was arrested last night at his home, 7345 Ethel avenue, Richmond Heights, and is held for investigation because he was seen talking to a man and a woman who sat in a stolen automobile which had been used Thursday in an attempted bank robbery in Indianapolis.

Richmond Heights police came upon the automobile near Oliver's home at 1:30 a. m. yesterday and sought to question the occupants. The car sped away and was subsequently abandoned at Hoover avenue and Clayton terrace. In it were a blood-stained coat with a bullet hole in the shoulder, a pair of trousers, and a lot of odds and ends, including a bottle of iodine purchased in Martinsville, Ill., on the Indianapolis-St. Louis road.

Oliver, known in the suburb as a responsible real estate dealer, refused to name the driver, stating he was a married man who would be embarrassed by the disclosure that he was out with a woman. He adhered to this story later when St. Louis detectives took him into custody, recognizing him as an ex-convict.

Police are trying to link up the Indianapolis robbery with two recent bank robberies in Maplewood. Jack F. Laury, fatally wounded in the Indianapolis bank, confessed that he was one of three men who obtained $14,000 in a raid on the Citizens' National Bank of Maplewood, March 28.

Laury named his companions in the Indianapolis holdup as Mr. and Mrs. Harry Watson, a name which coincided with the initials "H. W." discovered in the waistband of the trousers found in the abandoned car. The machine is the property of an Indianapolis carpenter.

Oliver, a former railroad switchman, was sentenced to five years for participation in the robbery of a mail car at the Missouri Pacific Bates street crossing, Aug. 18, 1926. He declared he had been "going straight" and making money in the real estate business since his release in November, 1925.

JUDGE BUTLER PUTS GRODZKI IN CUSTODY "TO COOL OFF"

Attorney Kept in Sheriff Office an Hour for Disturbance in Court.

Frank B. Grodzki, sometime provision judge of Court of Criminal Correction No. 2 and an unsuccessful candidate for that office in last year's Republican primary, was arrested yesterday on order of Judge Butler in Court of Criminal Correction No. 1 and committed to the Sheriff's custody for an hour "to cool off."

In Judge Butler's court, Grodzki slammed a book on the counsel table and grumbled an inaudible protest when a client, charged with receiving stolen property, was sentenced to six months in the Workhouse. As Judge Butler explained, Grodzki continued to protest and the Judge asked him to leave. At the door Grodzki exclaimed, "I know why you're doing this," and walked out.

Judge Butler sent a Deputy Sheriff after the lawyer and he spent an hour on a chair in the Sheriff's office. Then a messenger from the Court appeared with a verbal order for his release.

VIRGINIA WILLYS MARRIED TO ARGENTINE RANCH OWNER

Daughter of Ohio Auto Manufacturer and Luis de Guirre Wed in London.

LONDON, May 25.—Miss Virginia Willys, daughter of an Ohio automobile manufacturer, and Luis de Guirre, owner of Buenos Aires, cattle ranch owner, were married in the Henrietta Street Registry office this morning. A religious ceremony at Savoy Chapel followed. After a reception they departed for a honeymoon in Paris and Spain.

The bride was accompanied to the registry office by her father and mother. As soon as the ceremony was over the wedding party slipped out the back entrance and drove away unnoticed, avoiding a crowd which had gathered. A large number of the bride's American friends attended the religious ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Henry Young of the Savoy Chapel. Mrs. Maria de Vicuna, who attended the bride as matron of honor, wore green silk with a large hat of beige contrasting with the bride's white tulle and veil of antique rose point lace.

On leaving the church the automobile in which the bride and bridegroom were riding was caught in a traffic blockade, during which it was almost mobbed, some of the eager spectators even mounting the running board and peering in.

SAYS SIR AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN IS SQUARE PEG IN ROUND HOLE

Saturday Review of London 'Smirch' Hopes There Will Be New Blood in Next Cabinet.

LONDON, May 25.—Commenting on Sir Austen Chamberlain's recent announcement that Premier Baldwin had asked him to continue in the foreign office and that he had accepted, the Saturday Review, a conservative weekly, said:

"We have never concealed our belief that Sir Austen at the foreign office is a very square peg in a round hole and we cannot feel there is adequate compensation for his re-appointment in the reported decision that Sir William Joseph Hicks is not to continue in the home office and perhaps will not be in the cabinet at all. 'We sincerely hope Mr. Baldwin will make room for some new blood in the cabinet.'"

30 PER CENT LOAN BILL PASSED; NOW UP TO GOVERNOR

Missouri House Concurs in Senate Changes After Measure Apparently Was Defeated by Trickery.

By CURTIS A. BETTS A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 25.—The concurrence by the House yesterday afternoon in the Senate amendments to the small loan interest bill and its subsequent passage by the House may be attributed to the methods employed by the small loan lobbyists and their supporters in the Legislature.

Legislators who would have hesitated to vote for the bill on its merits voted for it because they refused to go on record against it after the legislative scandal which had marked its course almost on the day it was introduced.

In the minds of many sincere legislators there was an honest doubt as to the advisability of passing the act, but the trickery and persistent rumors of graft lined them up to vote for it.

Under the new provisions of the law the companies, organized to make loans of not more than $300, will be limited to an interest rate of 2 1/2 per cent a month, or 30 per cent a year. Since the original law was enacted two years ago they have been charging 3 1/2 per cent a month or 42 per cent a year.

They will be required to state in their advertisements the interest rate charged. Salary buyers will be brought under the terms of the act, and all the small loan companies will be required to make detailed reports of their business to the State Finance Commission.

Similar Bills Introduced. Early in the session a number of bills to curb the loan companies were introduced, some proposed an outright repeal of the law, and others proposed a reduction in the interest rate to as low as 1 1/2 per cent a year.

Committees to which the bills were assigned refused to report them. In the House it was necessary to obtain the passage of a resolution to get the bills on the floor. In the Senate, Senator Buford, chairman of the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, refused, even to entertain a motion by a committee member to report them out, and when a vote was taken for their passage, he refused to comply with the decision of the committee.

Largely because of Buford's arbitrary methods Senator Russell L. Dearthmont of Cape Girardeau, one of the Senate Judiciary Committee, by resolution, attempted to force the bills out onto the floor. He failed, but there arose such a storm of protest from over the State, that when a vote was taken on the bills, the interest rate to 2 1/2 per cent a year reached the Senate from the House, there was a majority sentiment for it.

Dearthmont successfully attempted to accomplish what any old member of the Senate would have said was impossible. The bill was near the foot of the calendar and Dearthmont, over the protest of Senator Casey of Kansas City, Democratic leader, president of the Senate and author two years ago of the small loan law, succeeded in having it taken from its place and made a special order of business for last Saturday.

Bailout Bill Reported. The Senate Judiciary Committee, to which the Bailout bill had been referred, had reported it out with an amendment changing the interest rate from 24 per cent back to 42 per cent. After an all-day battle, in which the bill was again taken up, the Senate, by a vote of 19 to 17, defeated the 42 per cent rate, and the bill was passed with a rate of 20 per cent.

This amendment made it necessary to send the bill back to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendment. Follow a former not familiar with legislative procedure, had intended to ask the House to concur in the Senate amendment, but was induced by Speaker Farver to move instead that the House refuse to concur. That motion carried and to all appearance had killed the bill.

In an effort to save it Dearthmont offered a motion, early-day morning, that the Senate recede from its amendments, but withdrew it when the discovery was made that the House had failed to comply with parliamentary custom in reporting its action to the Senate. It had given the Senate no opportunity of a conference or committee. The bill was sent back to the House for correction of the error.

During the noon recess Dearthmont and his supporters prepared the plan which was carried out in the afternoon. The situation was explained to Ballou, who agreed to move a reconsideration of the non-concurrence vote and if that was carried to move that the House concur. Both his motions were successful, nearly 100 votes, or about 25 more than were necessary being cast for reconsideration, and 100 being cast for passage of the bill as amended by the Senate.

JURY CENSUS DODGER FIRED AFTER FIVE HOURS IN CELL

Elmer Klusman, 30, Loses Job, but Not Because of Attitude, Employer Says.

Elmer Klusman, 30 year old, 5333 Labadie avenue, who was detained at Police Headquarters for almost five hours yesterday because he refused to give his name to a jury canvasser, was discharged as a shop employee of the Century Electric Co. today.

An officer of the company said Klusman's difficulty with the Court had not influenced his dismissal, which was "for other reasons." Klusman was released from custody when he supplied the desired information concerning himself.

A deputy under Jury Supervisor Amos Seaman was interviewing workmen at the Century Electric Co. factory when he met Klusman, who refused to give his name because he did not want to serve on a jury. He was arrested, taken before Circuit Judge Farney and ordered to city jail "from new on" for contempt of court. However, he changed his mind before being transferred from the holdover.

Seaman said Klusman was the second man in 20 years to be committed for refusing to give his name.

of a $10,000 lobby fund, and if there had not been a persistent lobby against the bill, there is doubt that it would have been passed.

The small loan companies had the support of the Russell Johnson Foundation to retain the existing law. Its representatives told committees that the small loan companies, making loans to a class of borrowers who could obtain credit on other places, and losing small amounts, could not operate on much less than a rate of 3 1/2 per cent a month.

Their argument was that the small loan law had driven the loan shark, who collected 250 per cent a year, from business, and that the bill operated to the benefit of the small borrower. There were no show people tables in Missouri to show conclusively what profits the companies were deriving.

The arguments of one representative of the Foundation, conservative of the Foundation committee that the 3 1/2 per cent rate was justified by the character of the business. It easily could have convinced a majority of the Senate and House had it not been that the legislators began to feel that defeat of the bill would disgrace them, and that they would be under suspicion.

The bill is now up to Gov. Caulfield.

YOUNG PRINCE, BALKED IN LOVE, SHOTS SELF

Son of Former Anna Gould and De Sagan in Desperate Condition.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 25.—The young Prince de Sagan, son of the former Anna Gould, shot himself eight days ago when his parents refused him permission to wed until he was 21 years old. The bullet penetrated between the lung and liver. Surgeons operated almost immediately, but pleurisy set in and his condition was described today as desperate.

His mother the Duchess de Talleyrand, made known her son's condition today and explained his action.

She said he, while at school in Southern France, had met a French girl and fallen in love with her. Returning home, he asked permission of his father, the Duke de Talleyrand, and herself to marry immediately, although he would not be 20 years old until July 16.

They tried to persuade him to wait, telling him they had no objection to the young woman, but thought him too young to marry. He threatened to kill himself, but his mother did not take him seriously. A pistol shot was heard. The young Prince had tried to make good his threat.

Prince de Sagan acquired his title recently when his father renounced it. He had a younger sister and three half brothers, sons of his mother by her first marriage to Count Boni de Castellane, a cousin of the Duke de Talleyrand.

The Prince's sweetheart is the 21-year-old daughter of an architect. She came to Paris from Southern France with her family at Whitecourt at the same time De Sagan came home for his vacation, both wishing to be married immediately. Her family was told of the shooting immediately and every day since she has visited the young man at his hospital.

At the hospital where the Prince was taken, it was said there was hardly any hope for him. Mental depression has cut down his resistance seriously, it was explained.

STREETS NEAR DOWNTOWN FIRE SCENE TO BE OPENED MONDAY

Building Commissioner Replies to Complaints on Wrecking at Eighth and Olive.

Wrecking of the two buildings at the southeast corner of Eighth and Olive streets that were damaged by fire last Tuesday morning will be completed in time to open both streets to traffic Monday morning. Building Commissioner Christopher announced today. Both streets have been closed in the vicinity of the structures and it has been necessary to reroute Olive and Bellefontaine cars.

Answering criticisms that the wrecking was proceeding too slowly, Christopher said as much speed as being made as was consistent with safety. He pointed out that the city pays for emergency work like this at a $1000 a day, but, under the law, charges the property owner for reimbursement.

Educational Day Observance. Educational day will be observed tomorrow at St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard, with an address at 11 o'clock by Rev. John McCarthy of the Bellefontaine Methodist Church, is to be the speaker.

Automobile Costs and Public Service Co. Propaganda.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It is surprising to see that "Transit News" takes you to task for publishing Prof. Ag's figure of 6.43 cents per mile, and cites against you as authority Bulletin No. 69 of Iowa State College, which was, in fact, prepared by the same professor about five years ago.

The low operating costs today are entirely logical in view of the far greater extent of hard-surfaced roads, the use of balloon tires that save wear and tear on the car, the more efficient general construction of automobiles which minimizes repair costs, and the great improvement in the gas economy of motors.

Several years ago when we were seeking for figures on the average cost per mile of an automobile, including every factor, such as depreciation, we accepted Bulletin No. 69 of Iowa State College as being the most thorough-going study we could find. It seemed to us to be a higher figure than we expected, even though it included depreciation cost, insurance, and all other elements, but we were satisfied with the accuracy of the study. Though we knew conditions varied, we felt that this was as honest and impartial a survey as we could find. That was Bulletin 69.

In Bulletin No. 91, again made by Prof. Ag of Iowa State College, covering a wide range of surveys in the United States, the figure of 6.43 cents per mile has been arrived at. Those who are interested in statistical methods can get the entire data in Bulletin 91, Iowa State College, Ames, Ia.

It seems to me that the street car sign referred to in "Transit News" calls for a further comment. The sign in question compares 16 cents a mile by automobile to 8 cents a mile by street car. The figure is now 6 cents a mile, but even so, that is for the entire vehicle, whether it carries one or five persons. If the automobile, for example, is carrying three persons at 6 cents a mile, the comparison then would be 2 cents per person per mile by automobile, compared with 8 cents per person per mile by street car. Judging by the number of persons using automobiles, the operating costs are reasonable. If in any city the operating costs are above normal, this situation could be met by neighbors taking turns in motoring each other downtown in the morning, which would be the logical economic answer to the type of argument presented by "Transit News."

It seems unfortunate, however, that street car companies should start a controversy as to the comparative methods of various modes of transportation. Each transportation service has its special uses—the airplane, the steamship, the motor bus, the street car, and the private automobile.

In the long run, economic law will determine the place of each. Lower operating cost as well as lower purchase price has been one of the reasons for increase in motor use during the past five years. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch was up to the minute in reporting the latest figures.

Reply to Ardent Fan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
WEDNESDAY'S Post-Dispatch carried a letter signed by "An Ardent Fan" wherein the writer deprecates the use of more than one radio broadcasting station sending out the results in detail of the ball games.

According to one of the authorities, namely, Laird and Lee, the word "ardent" is synonymous with hot, burning, fiery, vehement and so forth, while specific stipulation is made in the definition of the word "fan," which is said to apply to "an enthusiastic spectator at baseball."

We just wonder why it is that an "enthusiastic spectator" should decry the well-intentioned efforts of two or more stations to serve their listeners with the most interesting news of the moment, most particularly as it is only too often true that the intentions of one announcer often become monotonous and a change of station brings a change in sound that might well be likened to the results after moving several rows forward at the game itself. JOULES.

"A REAL CITY."

A correspondent takes us to task for saying that elimination of grade crossings is not yet practicable in Missouri. He cites the decision of Chicago 20 years ago to remove grade crossings, which he believes was one of the turning points in that city's history. He insists that St. Louis can do the same thing and, shuffling off its old rags, become, as he expresses it, "a real city."

The Post-Dispatch gladly accepts this reproach and is in hearty accord with the proposal to solve this dangerous and costly problem in the only way it can be solved—by elimination.

Nobody can question the economic loss to the community by these antiquated obstructions to traffic. The statisticians, we suppose, can estimate this tax which we are unconsciously paying, and they ought to do it, as the first step in removing this burden. Nobody has to tell the public of the hazard to life. That account is written in death and injury, with new entries in the page from day to day.

The grade crossing is a ghastly reproach to the fine dreams and lofty purposes of our rejuvenated city. It is a mocking note in our great chorus of progress. It belies the whole vision embodied in that stirring symbol, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

The grade crossing is a challenge to us all; to all our organizations, civic and professional; to all our leaders in every worthy cause; to our officials; to our citizenship. It is a peremptory challenge, we believe, to the heads of our great railroad systems, many of whom have deservedly high rating in their field. It is a challenge to the romantic, dynamic automobile industry.

We can profitably study what Chicago did with this problem. The plan originated with the Illinois Central Railroad as far back as 1892. Foreseeing the traffic demands of the World's Fair, that railroad obtained a permit from the Chicago City Council to elevate its track a distance of 16 blocks adjacent to the Fair site. The cost was slightly in excess of $1,000,000.

Subsequently other railroads followed the Illinois Central's lead. There have been difficulties, of course, and interruptions from time to time, but the program has continuously progressed until now the objective is within sight of a city free of street level crossings save those of a purely industrial character. In Chicago the railroads bear the entire expense of separation, the city assuming liability for property damages. The city's investment thus far is $125,000,000. That of the railroads is much larger, the Illinois Central alone having expended $177,000,000. The returns to the railroads, it is asserted, have justified the expenditure.

Among the distinguished efforts of Alfred E. Smith's governorship of New York was his acceptance of the elimination of grade crossings as a State project, as proposed by the New York World. The basic law in New York provided that the cost of elimination, when ordered by the Public Service Commission, should be paid for thus: 25 per cent by the State; 25 per cent by the city; 50 per cent by the railroad. That law has been variously amended. How the State and the cities could finance their share of the cost was the problem Gov. Smith undertook to solve. As was his custom he went to the people, who, at the end of a six years' war, authorized a bond issue of $300,000,000. Circumstances and politics have delayed progress, but the way has been charted for New York to get rid of grade crossings.

The Post-Dispatch is convinced that the elimination of the grade crossing is not impracticable in St. Louis. It is not only practicable, it is imperative. It must be done. And it will be done just as soon as we make up our community mind to do it.

The City Plan Commission says we need another bond issue to carry forward, on an expanded scale, the program of improvements authorized in 1921. We submit that the elimination of grade crossings might be included in this prospectus. It may be doubted if any other single project would contribute more than this to the safety of life and the city's economic progress. The Delmar viaduct is a convincing example of what the elimination of grade crossings means.

St. Louis is on its way. It is doing fine things, big things, beautiful things. But the grade crossing is a foul blot on its claims and aspirations. Let us remove it as the one obstacle now to our estate as "a real city."

Believe it or not, a 10-cent store has just burned in St. Louis with a loss of $300,000.

THE COUNTY ROAD SITUATION.

It is surprising to learn that no definite, detailed plan for the expenditure of St. Louis County's $10,000,000 road bond issue has been prepared, although the people voted the money 11 months ago and contracts have been let for virtually 35 miles of road improvements, to cost $697,324. Assuredly the people have a right to expect public servants to have a fixed program for such work, particularly when so great a sum is involved. The County Chamber of Commerce has called for "at least a tentative map" of the road system from the County Court, which is the administrative body, and submission of a program to the Citizens' Road Bond Supervisory Board.

How can a fair distribution of improvements over the various parts of the populous county be made without a scheme prepared in advance? How are the authorities to determine what roads to select for improvement if they don't find out ahead of time how far the money will go? The contracts already let call for about 1212 miles of stone, gravel and macadam surfacing—types which every automobile driver knows do not stand up well under heavy traffic. How can the county know, without a plan, to what extent it will be safe to employ these low-grade surfacings or how many miles of hard road can be built on main arteries? The Chamber of Commerce has performed a service by bringing the record of contracts before the public, for the people to decide whether the County Court has acted wisely so far. Edward Beecher, chairman of the supervisory board, an extra-legal body, says there has been no meeting of minds on the road projects. He insists that the public should be informed in advance of what is proposed. He is quite right. There have been differences of opinion over the use of patented pavements, such as have been criticized as an extravagance in St. Louis; quarrels over the allocation of some of the bond money by the county to the incorporated suburbs, a threat to tie up the work by injunction, and rumblings of public dissatisfaction because new roads are slow in appearing. It is time for a thorough review of the road improvement situation.

DEFEAT FOR THE SALARY BUYERS.

Concurrence by the House in Senate amendments to the Ballew bill regulating small loans and putting the heel of the State upon salary buying was emphatic enough to indicate that when the Legislature is aroused it is well able to defend the public interest. Coming back from the Senate, the bill passed the House yesterday by a vote of 100 to 3. This after persistent efforts to prevent consideration of such a bill in either house of the Legislature, and after legislative practices that have been a stench in the nostrils of the State. The Ballew bill is now before Gov. Caulfield. It fixes the monthly rate for small loans up to $300 at 2½ per cent, curbs the evil practice of salary buying, and places the small loans companies under additional regulation.

This has been the biggest battle in the legislative session. Its repercussions have included investigation by a Cole County grand jury, the virtual expulsion of Senator Buford from the Legislature, innumerable charges of bad faith made on the floors of both Houses, and smashing of precedents that have obtained at Jefferson City for 50 years. Nothing else has occasioned such a tumult, nothing else so stood the assembly upon its head.

Two men who waged this fight on behalf of public decency may be said to have awakened, as Byron did, and found themselves famous. They are Senator Dearmont and Representative Ballew. Senator Dearmont saved the bill. At a moment when the great lobby sent against it seemed to have captured the Legislature and Mr. Ballew was threatening to resort to the referendum, the Senator from the Cape Girardeau district rose to heroic stature and forced the Senate to a vote. That was all the bill ever needed in either house. The right was so obvious that an affirmative vote was certain. The enemies of the bill knew this. Hence their obstructionist tactics.

Unfortunately, the issue was complicated by the Russell Sage Foundation. The foundation originated these bills in all the States. It was responsible for fixing the monthly rate on small loans in Missouri at 3½ per cent. It has made the point, and still affirms it, that a lesser rate of interest drives the legalized loan companies out of the field. Nevertheless, a total annual interest of 42 per cent cannot be necessary to companies operating in the small loans field, and Missouri is in our opinion on solid ground in reducing the annual rate to 20 per cent.

As for salary buying, the Post-Dispatch has urged Missouri to put her heel upon it. Missouri did.

The name of the Independence-Liberty bridge, viewed by travelers nearing Kansas City, has a heartening sound of freedom about it. That is, until one reads the signs more closely, and sees that it is a toll bridge, like all the other new ones.

AT EIGHTH AND OLIVE.

The Department of Public Safety has not distinguished itself razing the buildings at Eighth and Olive streets, partially destroyed by fire.

Director Steinger says it is a hazardous job and the safety of workmen must be considered. That fact is understood and appreciated. But it is also a fact that one of the vital retail sections of the city has been crippled by this obstruction to traffic. Business houses report a serious loss in trade. They complain that the wrecking has not been vigorously prosecuted. They make the point, which seems to us to have weight, that night shifts could probably have been employed. To the onlooker the Post-Dispatch headline describing the razing as a "brick at a time" appears warranted.

The inconvenience and loss consequent upon "acts of God," as legal terminology defines fire, are, of course, inescapable. But the public as a whole, and the affected business area in particular, have the right to expect that such inconvenience and loss will be reduced to a minimum by the city. The Department of Public Safety did not attack the problem with the promptness and vigor demanded by the situation.

Instead of giving St. Louis home rule, the State Legislature has attempted to take away from us our control over franchises.

THE ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR.

Who should appear on the first page yesterday but the absent-minded professor, in this case Prof. Parker T. Moon of Columbia University. Prof. Moon, who teaches international relations, grabbed his butterfly net, or whatever it is that international relations instructors amuse themselves with during the summer, and made tracks for the wilds. He had forgotten to give his students their final examination and was summoned back to town to remedy this oversight.

Prof. Moon belongs to that numerous species of academic gentlemen who seem unable to master the petty details of life. He is like the professor who traveled all the way from his home in Australia to London to attend an educational conference, only to find that the conference was scheduled for the following year. And, of course, there is always the professor who, rescued from drowning after sinking for the third time, suddenly remembered that he could swim.

Both of our United States Senators from Missouri were for Lenroot, which ought to send the people of the State back to the waiting place where they fostered their grief at the passing of James A. Reed.

From the number of surveys going on surveying would seem to offer a great future for young people.

Anyway, the O'Fallon decision makes Washington the great American watering place.

THE WATCHMAN.

The New Governor-General

Appointment of Dwight F. Davis to the Philippines post is applauded by the press; his training as Secretary of War, when he was the intermediary between the Governor-General and the President is regarded as having fitted him for his task; it is expected he will carry on the wise policies of his predecessor, Henry L. Stimson.

A HAPPY SELECTION.

From the Washington Evening Star.
Dwight F. DAVIS has been appointed and has accepted the office of Governor-General of the Philippines. The selection of Mr. Davis for this important post is a happy one. As Secretary of War, Mr. Davis was in close contact with the affairs of the Philippines. The administration of the islands comes under the jurisdiction of the War Department. Furthermore, the United States maintains a considerable military force on the islands in which the War Department is directly interested. After Mr. Davis became Secretary of War he was interested in building up the utility of the army in peace-time activities. Some of these activities have been undertaken in the Philippines.

The Philippine Islands are far greater in extent and in importance than many Americans, living thousands of miles away, realize. The present, too, the farthest outpost of the United States in Asiatic waters. Upon their proper administration much depends, not only for the island peoples themselves, but also for the continued good relations of the United States with the Philippines. The administration of the islands is well qualified to have charge of the administration as Governor-General. He has demonstrated his executive ability as Secretary of War and as Assistant Secretary of that department.

President Hoover regards the office of Governor-General of the Philippines as one of major importance. He is to be congratulated upon filling the post so adequately. Problems of administration as well as of the policies to be developed and carried through in regard to these island possessions call for diplomatic ability, common sense and firmness. The trade relations between the Philippine Islands and the United States are always a matter of keen interest to both. The new Governor-General will be in a position to advance American interests as well as those of the islands.

AN ADMIRABLE APPOINTMENT.

From the New York Herald-Tribune.
PRESIDENT HOOVER has been fortunate in finding so eminently satisfactory an appointee for Governor-General of the Philippines as ex-Secretary Dwight F. Davis. In administering dependencies this country has been handicapped by lack of a body of men trained in such overseas service. Great Britain has necessarily developed colonial experts who combine varied personal experience with peoples of other races and civilizations and a sound indoctrination in the empire's century-old colonial policy. We have to depend mostly on rare colonial administrators, accidentally trained, as General Wood was in Cuba, or on beginners available because of their high character, capacity and good will.

Mr. Davis, fortunately, was brought as Secretary of War into close contact with Philippine problems. He was the intermediary between the Governor-General and the President.

President Hoover has sought a Governor-General who would carry on the reconstruction begun by Gen. Wood and continued by Col. Stimson. He has secured one who measures up to the requirements of the post—one of the most difficult and exacting in the Federal Government's gift. The President's good will toward the Philippines is strikingly manifested in this appointment. It will be for the Philippines to reciprocate by offering the new Governor-General all the assistance within their power.

NEW GOVERNOR IS WELL EQUIPPED.

From the New York Times.
IN appointing former Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis to be Governor-General of the Philippines, President Hoover has chosen a man who during the last five years has had exceptional opportunities to inform himself about Philippine conditions. The administration of the islands is supervised by the Bureau of Insular Affairs, which is a division of the War Department. Both as Assistant Secretary and as head of this department Mr. Davis was able to keep in touch with the affairs of the bureau. He knows personally the various leaders of the Filipino political groups, and will go to his new post, like his predecessor, with the prestige of having held a high Cabinet office.

Mr. Davis will find his path in the Philippines smoothed for him by his predecessor, Col. Stimson. By making generous concessions to the Filipino leaders, the Colonel obtained from them a fair measure of co-operation. They passed a number of laws which he had advocated, including the corporation law and one affecting banks. So as to forestall the passage of an act by our Congress appropriating for civilian aid to the Governor-General a part of the sum collected by the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue on Philippine tobacco products which is annually turned over to the Philippine Treasury, the Philippine Legislature passed a bill granting the Governor $125,000 a year to employ civilian experts. But on the main issue—the modernization of the law and so as to make it possible for capital to develop the agricultural resources of the Philippines—the leaders refused to act.

As heir to the Stimson policies, Gov. Davis will also fall heir to the good will which Col. Stimson earned.

Mr. Davis brings to the handling of his complex work as Governor-General a wide experience with political and business problems.

WILL PURSUE PRESENT POLICIES.

From the Washington Post.
THE experience of Dwight F. Davis as Secretary of War gives him a great advantage in beginning his new duties as Governor-General of the Philippines. While the Governor-General has large discretion, he is always in close touch with the War Department, and with the Secretary of War as his immediate superior. Thus Mr. Davis while Secretary of War obtained an intimate knowledge of Philippine affairs under the administration of Governor-General Stimson. It may be taken for granted that he will pursue the policies of his predecessor, the larger aspects of which he helped to shape.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, May 24.
THERE are thousands of women in the United States who would give half their own to be in Pearl Peden Oldfield's place. And Pearl Peden Oldfield would gladly give more than half of her possessions if she could walk out of her office back into the normal life of a woman who was greatly interested in her home and husband and family. She is a woman who has been through the hardships of unemployment and poverty; but at last, in the extreme of despair, allowed a healthy family to take her baby and left her in the hands of a cruel fate. Too late she learned that her husband had again escaped, been named of her death and the child, and miraculously escaping the pursuing police, disappeared completely.

The scene then shifts to the Nevada desert where the fugitive Mrs. Oldfield, inspired by the trust and sympathy of a philosophic inspector, Thurman at last attained her full measure of manhood. She was then a woman who had been through the hardships of unemployment and poverty; but at last, in the extreme of despair, allowed a healthy family to take her baby and left her in the hands of a cruel fate. Too late she learned that her husband had again escaped, been named of her death and the child, and miraculously escaping the pursuing police, disappeared completely.

At a special election she was chosen to the people in her district to fill the vacant term of her husband in the Nevada Congress, and also was elected on the same day to the seventy-first session.

MR. OLDFIELD found herself thrust into politics almost without warning. She frankly admits that she doesn't like it. Only her sense of duty sent her to the seat in Congress vacated by her distinguished husband.

She was nominated without opposition by the members of her party. Representing the Second District of Nevada, she would have no opposition. She only had one opponent, a man running on the independent ticket. Without even so much as a statement in support of her candidacy she was elected.

It was a bewildering and rather frightened woman who stood before the speaker's stand last January on the floor of the House and swore that she would faithfully discharge her duties as a national legislator.

Neither club work nor social affairs had played much of a part in Mrs. Oldfield's life. To use her own words, "There had been perhaps nothing connected with my life, from a public viewpoint, particularly colorful."

She had kept herself informed concerning public affairs. Her husband had discussed his legislative problems with her. Especially was this true the three years preceding Mr. Oldfield's death.

"The interest I have in the public welfare is due to him. During those last three years we were constantly together. Whether we were meeting on the golf links or at home, we usually found time to discuss the things nearest my husband's heart—the doings of Congress."

"My greeting to him at the close of each day when Congress was in session was, 'Well, what happened today?' And each day he would discuss the day's events."

"I always was his first audience when he was to make a speech. He would read his manuscript to me carefully and together we would talk about it and improve it in any way we could."

"You can readily see that this experience is invaluable to me now."

BUT Mrs. Oldfield is emphatic in her declaration that Congress is no place for her, and that she will retire where her term has expired.

Successful Novel by a St. Louisan

THURMAN LUCAS, by Harlan E. Read, (Macmillan).
THURMAN LUCAS is an old-fashioned plot novel of exceptional merit and of especial interest to St. Louis readers, since the author is well known to St. Louisans and the novel furnishes background for many of the incidents in the story. Lucas was born in a town in southern Illinois coal mining town, passed an idle childhood in a haphazard environment, and was an undisciplined, uneducated, untrained, unskilled, and uneducated man. He was a prize fighter. In 1903, driven home by his mother, he went to St. Louis, where he lived in a public dance hall. "They loved and loved."

Love brought complications, for Lucas' mother, recalling her own life, opposed her daughter's marriage to the penniless, jobless, uneducated, and unskilled man. Confronted by an economic necessity, which neither Lucas nor the young lovers, after discussing the problem on a bench in Lafayette Park, aimlessly wandered over Eads Bridge and appropriated a horse and buggy for a moonlight drive. Lucas, the romantic, and when registered for the night at a St. Louis river front hotel, informed the irate mother. Thurman was arrested and Viola driven from home. A benevolent lawyer by a sentimental plea to a jury on Christmas eve saved him from prison but the despicable rival named up a case of horse stealing. On a second trial an East St. Louis Judge sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary.

His climatic, a hardened and cynical criminal, first awakened in the ignorant young giant a sense of the realities of life and made him a partner in a thrilling jail break that ended in failure and years to his term. Viola, meanwhile, faced the horrors of detached motherhood, maintaining herself precariously as an untrained factory worker. Sustained by her love of the young so trusting, she bravely endured the hardship of unemployment and poverty; but at last, in the extreme of despair, allowed a healthy family to take her baby and left her in the hands of a cruel fate. Too late she learned that her husband had again escaped, been named of her death and the child, and miraculously escaping the pursuing police, disappeared completely.

THURMAN LUCAS, by Harlan Eugene Read. (Macmillan).
 HERE is an old-fashioned plot of exceptional merit and of special interest to St. Louis readers, since the author is a well-known St. Louisan and the story furnishes background for many of the incidents in the story. Thurman Lucas was born in a small town in a haphazard neighborhood in a social environment of saloons and brothels. He was an undisciplined, untalented, and with some physical strength and with some ability, he was a prize fighter. In 1903, driven home by his step-father, he entered the St. Louis river front hotel, where he was employed as a waiter. Two days after settling in a rooming house, he was arrested on a charge of stealing a public dance hall. "They wanted and loved me," he said.

Love brought complications, for the girl's mother, recalling her own life, opposed her daughter's marriage to the penniless, jobless youth. Confronted by an economic necessity, which neither of the young lovers after dispassionate reflection on a bench at Lafayette Park, aimlessly wandered over Eads Bridge and heedlessly appropriated a horse and buggy for a moonlight drive. A rival for the girl's hand had been the romantic, and when they registered for the night at a St. Louis river front hotel, he learned the girl's mother. Thurman was arrested and Viola driven from home. A benevolent lawyer by the name of a jury on Christmas eve saved him from prison but the despicable rival turned up a case of horse stealing. On a second trial on East St. Louis Judge sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary.

In his cellmate, a hardened and criminal, first awakened in the ignorant young giant a sense of the realities of life and made him a partner in a thrilling jail break that ended in failure and years to his term. Viola, meanwhile, faced the horrors of attached motherhood, maintaining herself precariously as an unemployed factory worker. Sustained by her love of the youth so tragically torn from her, she bravely endured the hardship of unemployment and poverty; but at last, in an extremity of despair, allowed a wealthy family to take her baby and let notice of the intention of her son. Too late she learned that Thurman had again escaped, been informed of her death and the disposal of the child, and miraculously escaping the pursuing police, had disappeared completely.

The scene then shifts to the Nevada desert where the fugitive finds refuge. Inspired by the trust and sympathy of a philosophic prospector, Thurman at last attained his full measure of manhood. He then turned to the prospector's defective education and the course of 20 years attains wealth and influence as an operator in the gold fields. In the swift-moving closing chapters, the unfortunates are reunited after a long time, but only briefly seeing to Viola's untimely death. The fate-warred Thurman wins his son at last, and the story ends with father and son and the boy's wife settled in a comfortable cabin overlooking their gold mine, the mine in Nevada.

HARLAN EUGENE READ.

woven a story of sustained interest. If at times the trappings of melodrama are apparent, and the contrasting traits of the good and the bad characters too much emphasized, credulity is not overstrained, the suspense and action of the story amply compensating for such minor faults. The chief characters are so vividly realized and command a reader's unflinching sympathy. Viola is a tragic and pathetic figure, while Thurman, the ignorant youth who wins out against the law's injustice and the own bitterness of spirit, is a distinct addition to the heroes of realistic fiction.

The descriptions of prison life, of convict plotting and duplicity, denote painstaking research, as does the treatment of conditions among unskilled industrial workers in a great city, or the more picturesque activities of a Western mining camp.

Mr. Read occasionally injects his social theories into his interpretation of the crises in the drama, humanitarian principles often personally expounded before groups of St. Louis liberals.

Mr. Read was born and lived in Jacksonville, Ill., began to earn his living at 14, worked his way through Illinois College, studied for a year at Oxford University, and after five years as editor of the Business Monthly Magazine and auditor of Brown's Business College system, became manager and finally owner of these schools. He is known throughout the Mississippi Valley for his lecturing and teaching and as writer of a syndicated series of ambition talks in about 400 papers.

Mr. Read says: "In preparation for the writing of 'Thurman Lucas' I spent a long time studying criminology, visiting jails and penitentiaries, and gold-mining and prospecting in Nevada. I took part in the Weepah gold rush in 1926 and did my share with the pick and shovel. I lived in a tent in a mining camp, ate miners' grub, knew everybody in the camp from the gamblers to the Chief Justice of the Nevada Supreme Court. It was here that I started to write the book. The story is laid in sections with which I have been familiar all my life—the Mississippi Valley and pioneer West."

AIRCRAFT WEEK OPENS WITH SHOW AT THE COLISEUM

$10,700 Gardner Trophy Races for Commercial Planes to Be Held Tuesday and Thursday.

The St. Louis Aircraft Show, which opened at the Coliseum today, is the first of three events which will attract aviation notables to St. Louis next week.

Of major importance to the aviation industry is the Third National Aeronautic Meeting, opening at Hotel Jefferson Monday. Forty-three papers on aeronautical subjects will be discussed at this meeting by military and commercial experts. The third event is the Gardner trophy races for commercial planes, to be held at Parks Airport Tuesday and Thursday.

Airplanes, gliders, motorboats and aeronautical supplies are on display at the Coliseum exhibition, which is sponsored by Jackson Johnson Post, American Legion.

Planes of St. Louis companies have a prominent part in the show. Two Curtiss-Robinson Airplane Manufacturing Co., are displayed by Curtiss Flying Service. A Ryan biplane owned by "Casey" Lambert, is another St. Louis product. The Ryan, built to Lambert's order, has wine colored upholstery and red leather seat cushions. The Avon, a training plane with a low landing speed developed by the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., occupies a place next to the Robinson. A fleet training plane used by Universal Aviation School students at Lambert-St. Louis Field is also on display.

Students to Construct a Glider. Other aircraft in the exhibition are a Barling NB-3, low-wing monoplane, manufactured by the Nicholas-Bradley Aircraft Co., Marshall, Mo.; an American Eagle, a Lockheed-Vega, a Southern Messenger, a Verville Air Coach, a Monocoupe. The majority of the aircraft shown are monoplane type with enclosed cabins. The Barling, which has two open cockpits, is one exception.

The glider exhibit includes two German types and one of local design, the latter being made by the Gardner Convertible Glider Co., St. Louis. The public will be instructed in the wing construction of a glider by a group of Soldan High School students, who will construct a glider during the exhibition. Model aircraft will be fashioned at the show by Boy Scouts and other juvenile enthusiasts.

An attractive booth is that of the Von Hoffmann Flying School, in which the exhibit is illuminated by a miniature always beacon. The Universal Aviation Corporation's exhibit covers air mail and passenger transportation, as well as its flying school. Engines, aeronautical supplies and accessories and aviation toys are included among the smaller exhibits. Aircraft gasoline and oil concerns are well represented.

A special radio program has been arranged in connection with the show, a number of famous pilots attending the Aeronautic Meeting being among the speakers sought. The exhibition will continue through next week, the doors opening at 11 a. m. daily.

Notables to Attend Session. Dr. Vilhelmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer; Gen. James Fechet, commander of the Army air service; Admiral Moffett, commander of the Navy air forces; Orville Wright, Lawrence Sperry, Miss Amelia Earhart, and Clarence Chamberlin are among the notables who have informed the local committee that they will attend the Aeronautic Meeting. Dr. Stefansson will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Aeronautic Division, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, at Hotel Jefferson Wednesday evening.

Gardner Trophy Races. The Gardner trophy races for commercial planes are for a total of $10,700 in cash prizes and a trophy.

Twenty-five pilots, including Earl Rowland, winner of last year's trans-continental race, and George Haldeman, who piloted Ruth Elder on her trans-Atlantic flight attempt, are entered in the event. On Tuesday the pilots will take off in groups from Jacksonville, Fla., Denver, Colo., San Antonio, Tex., Buffalo, N. Y., and Fargo, N. D., and race to Parks Airport. Pilots finishing first and second in each event will receive $750 and $250 respectively. The ten planes qualifying in the opening heats will compete Thursday in a round trip race from Parks Airport to Indianapolis, Ind., circling a pylon at the Indianapolis speedway.

Four St. Louisans are entered in the event. They are George Lee Lambert, son of Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, Dale Jackson, Gentry Shelton and Sydney Hall. Lambert finished first and second in the Indianapolis speedway.

True Perspective Motion Pictures Demonstrated

Radio Corporation of America Photophone, Inc., Announces "Natural Vision" Films, Devised by Two Chicagoans.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Radio Corporation of America Photophone, Inc., announces perfection of a new device in motion pictures, described as "natural vision photography and projection." The system was demonstrated last night to a private audience.

The new system, the announcer says, makes possible the projection of pictures in lifelike perspective upon a screen covering the entire proscenium opening of an ordinary theater. It is further asserted for that they can be synchronized satisfactorily with sound.

The camera and projection machine, both of which use an especially wide film, were developed by George K. Spoor and John J. Berggren of Chicago. The camera was said to be capable of photographing scenes five miles away from its lens and to render unnecessary the taking of closeups to show facial expressions.

In the demonstration last night a current Broadway musical show, with every figure on the great stage life-sized and facial expressions all as clear as in the ordinary close-up, was shown on the screen.

Later on come pictures of Niagara Falls, reproducing the green and white depths of the rushing water and the uplifting mist. The Niagara bridge was shown clearly outlined in the distance, although that bridge was 2½ miles from the camera. A light-house tower was photographed in the background at a distance of five miles.

"Mammoth panoramic pictures more than 70 feet long can be thrown on even larger screens with this system," explained the lecturer. "Great spectacles, in all their magnitude and grandeur, vast outdoor scenes in their true perspective, may now be projected on the motion picture screen."

The Spoor-Berggren film is twice the width of the old flat-shaded, two-dimensional movie film. At the side of the film a beam of light carries the music and voices of the players. Owing to the great width of the film an air blast is used to support it as it travels through the projector.

The stereoscopic or third dimensional effect is obtained in a novel way. The camera has a double lens which "looks" at a scene from two separate points. The two images are resolved by means of other lenses which give a single sharp image on the film.

But though one image is recorded, the shadows of the two points of vision are retained, and it is this different double shadow which "models" the picture on the screen, gives it depth and perspective. As the lecturer explained it, the picture seems to start at the surface of the glass-crusted screen and to retreat into infinity, so that an object five miles away appears to make the screen five miles "deep."

quiring foreign patent rights to the mill. Zeilinger's schedules list assets of $2788, of which $4000 is in real estate bonds and $5500 in real estate at 40 Benton place, the bankrupt's former home. It is possible that investors will be paid nearly 50 per cent.

Asked if he still thought he had a practical idea, Zeilinger answered, "I know I have. I could develop it in six months if I had enough money."

Christian J. Zeilinger, inventor and promoter, related in bankruptcy court yesterday how he obtained about $14,000 from more than 90 small investors through three promotion enterprises designed to develop his invention of a "gravity flour mill," which he claimed would revolutionize the flour industry. The three enterprises were declared insolvent March 15 after investing creditors had instituted bankruptcy proceedings.

Zeilinger conceived the idea for his mill in 1915 but never patented it. At that time he raised subscriptions for the International Gravity Mills, a projected organization. Later, when he found he had not acquired sufficient funds he incorporated the Zeilinger Industrial Development Co. to promote the invention on a percentage basis.

The capital stock was paid for by real estate valued by Zeilinger at $9700 and $3000 in cash put up by himself and two friends. He sold about $4500 of stock in his name to the public and turned the proceeds into the company, making a total of about $8000 in subscriptions to the two enterprises. The development company, he said, never acquired rights to the invention.

In 1923, Zeilinger continued in response to questions by Edward W. Tobin, trustee the Zeilinger Capital Trust was formed to raise more money. Subscribers invested about $4500 in the enterprise, according to his testimony.

Asked what he had been doing in recent years to develop his invention, Zeilinger replied that he had been following an investment program to obtain additional funds. He explained that in 1925 he borrowed $5000 from a bank, using as security $7000 in bonds, of which $3500 was in bonds of the developing company. He was successful in stock market speculation, he said, and returned the bonds to the company.

Zeilinger said he had refunded about $1600 to investors in the Zeilinger Trust because it had failed to carry out a plan of action.

Second hundred thousand! "Romance, humor, and a high note of bitter tragedy." —Detroit News.

The Century Electric Co., 1805 Pine street, has purchased Roth Brothers & Co. of Chicago, manufacturers of electric motors and motor generators. It was announced today. Although the consideration was not revealed, it was learned that the Chicago concern had a net worth of about $400,000.

Roth Brothers & Co. will be operated as a division of the Century company, according to the announcement, and some of the items manufactured by it will be made in the St. Louis plant. The acquisition of the company is to supplement the Century's line of poly-phase induction industrial power motors and its line of single phase motors with the Roth Brothers' direct current industrial power motors, direct current generators for industrial power and lighting, alternating current generators, and motor generator sets for motion picture projectors, broadcasting, television and signal sets.

WHEAT IN NEW LOW FOR SEASON CLOSES IRREGULAR

By The Associated Press.

Wheat prices tumbled in early trading today to below any level heretofore touched this season, failed to bring about a recovery, and the market promptly recovered. Rains in Canada were the chief factor in the price decline.

However, buying on the decline, which was especially heavy in the United States, developed in sufficient volume to steady the market.

Wheat closed irregular, at 34-cent net.

ceived was that the Canadian unsheltered reserve in the soil was unusually scanty, and that crop results were likely to be somewhat reduced. Actual weather conditions in June and July, however, were favorable.

In emphasizing the news of rains in Canada, dispatches today tellingly noted that the Argentine market had received relatively little notice from wheat traders here.

The Argentine market, however, was regarded as of considerable importance coming after a period of drought, and the Argentine government was busy with preparations for the new Argentine wheat crop.

TILDEN AND HUNTER ELIMINATED IN FRENCH TENNIS DOUBLES PLAY

BOROTRA AND LA COSTE BEAT OLD RIVALS IN SEMI-FINALS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 25.—Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter lost their first 1929 battle with their old French tennis rivals today, losing to Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste in the semifinals of the French double championships. The scores were 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

The smashing victory over America's first and second ranking stars assured an all-French final for the title as Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon eliminated the English team of J. C. Gregory and I. G. Collins earlier in the day in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Tilden and Hunter put up a good fight and managed to check their opponents' attack long enough to win the third set, but the younger team packed the greater endurance and came back with a rush that would not be denied.

The first title to be decided in the championships, was won by the crack women's doubles team of Ella de Alvarez of Spain and Kees Bouman of Holland.

Playing with the same irresistible power with which they eliminated America's hope, Helen Wills and Edith Cross, and the defending champions from England, the Spanish-Dutch combination today won the final from the Misses Robbe Heine and Ethel Neave of South Africa, 7-5, 6-2.

With the opening of play in women's singles, Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., sixth ranking American player, safely reached the second round by defeating Mme. Roger Danel of France, 6-0, 6-2. Miss Morrill played fairly good tennis.

Hunter and Miss Helen Wills defeated Madame Renee Mathieu and Jacques Brugnon of France to reach the semi-finals in mixed doubles. The scores were 6-2, 6-3.

French Win First Set.

The Franco-American doubles semi-final started with Borotra serving to Tilden. After three games the Americans led by two to one, but the Frenchmen ran three straight to make the game 4-2 in their favor.

Lacoste then lost his service largely due to Tilden's sterling returns. The French broke through Hunter, however, to lead at 5-2.

The tennis was fast, quick, quite up to the standard of the Cochet-Brugnon vs. Gregory-Collins match. Borotra and Lacoste proceeded to win the first set from Tilden and Hunter, 6-2.

Slashing through the American defense with even greater ease, the French stars also captured the second set, 6-2.

The point scores, first set: Lacoste-Borotra—4 1 2 4 5 4 3 5—33 Tilden-Hunter—0 4 4 1 2 1 3 5 3—24

The Frenchmen captured both Tilden and Hunter's services and were soon leading, three-love, in the second set. The quality of the tennis now was improving with Borotra at the net, volleying and jumping as spryly as of old.

The Americans broke through Lacoste for their first game, after which Tilden, serving, won a love game to cut the French lead in games to 3-2. Here the home players braced and ran out the set without further ado, now leading by two sets to none.

Scores, second set: Lacoste-Borotra—7 4 4 0 4 5 4—35 Tilden-Hunter—5 5 4 4 1 3 2—28

Tilden and Hunter won. Games now are all keenly contested and Tilden, Borotra, Hunter, Lacoste and Tilden each won their services games. The Americans scored the first break when they took Borotra's service to lead, 4-2. Hunter obliged on his service, making it four errors kept Uhl in trouble all the time.

Soldan and Beaumont were to meet in the second game of the twin bill to determine Cleveland's opponent in the title game to be played next Saturday.

The point scores, third set: Lacoste-Borotra—4 7 6 4 1 2 4 2—21 Tilden-Hunter—6 5 5 2 4 4 1 4—38

The phlegmatic Rene and the dashing Jean definitely settled the issue when they swept the first four games of the final set.

Tilden and Hunter held on bravely and took three of the remaining five games, but the lead was too great to be overcome.

The point scores, fourth set: Lacoste-Borotra—5 7 6 1 3 4 2 4—39 Tilden-Hunter—3 5 4 5 4 2 4—34

RETURNING STAR SAYS MEMBERS OF U. S. TEAM "WORN OUT"

NEW YORK, May 25.—LEO DIEGEL, who finished third in the British open golf championship after setting the early pace, is back home "fed up on golf," but only temporarily.

"Right now I'm dead tired of golf," he said. "I'll be all right, though, in a week, when I will begin to get in shape for the open."

Two other members of the Ryder Cup team, Al Watrous and John Golden, returned with Diegel on the Aquitania.

Diegel spoke up in defense of his team captain, Walter Hagen, who has been subjected to some criticism in England for cancelling arrangements for two matches with Archie Compston.

"Walter in all," declared the P. G. A. Champion. "He simply can't play serious golf now. He is worn out, just as I am, and the same thing applies to the other fellows."

TIGERS AND WHITE SOX SET SEASON'S RECORD WITH 21-INNING GAME

With hardly anything but the game's outcome at stake, the Tigers and the White Sox punched and jabbed at each other for 21 innings at Comiskey Park yesterday, thereby removing the spotlight from the efforts of the Athletics to lap the field. The Tigers won the marathon by 6 to 5, and did regain a virtual tie with the Yankees, but both clubs stood five games behind the flying Mackmen today.

Ted Lyons went the route against Detroit, and George Tishman, 20 of the 21 inning Detroit right-hander gave way to a pinch runner in the twenty-first round, but received credit for the victory, his eighth in succession this season. Lil Storer finished for him.

The game was three rounds short of the American League record and five below the memorable draw played by the Braves and the Robins on May 1, 1920. Only four contests ever went longer than the Detroit-Chicago battle, however—the two record clashes and a pair of 22-inning games in the National League.

shot from off the green for a birdie to McCoy's five.

Wolff had a tough time getting into the final round himself. He finished the morning round 1 down in the semifinal against Medart when he took a par 72 to Medart's 71.

In the afternoon he was unable to square the match until the sixth hole where he finally broke through with a par 3 to Medart's 4 to even matters. He slipped back at the seventh by taking 5 to Medart's par four and finished the first half of the afternoon round one down when he halved the eighth and ninth, the eighth in birdie fours and the ninth in par fours.

Starting the final nine, however, Wolff squared the match with a birdie 4 at the tenth to a six for Medart, halved the eleventh with a par four and went one up at the twelfth with a birdie three to Medart's par four.

They halved the thirteenth with a par 3, although Medart got a bad break when his putt hit the back of the cup and bounced out. At No. 14 Medart's first shot was in the ditch and he lay 4 on the green to Wolff's 2. Clarence layed his approach putt on the edge of the cup and went two up when Medart missed a desperate try to sink a par 4.

The fifteenth with fives but the match ended at the sixteenth when Wolff got a birdie four to Medart's five.

Wolff was out for the first nine in the afternoon in 36, two over par, the same as Medart, while he scored two birdies on the six holes of the incoming nine which were played.

For his five rounds in the tournament so far Wolff has played three over par, which is 73 for the course, while Medart, whom he eliminated, has equaled par exactly for his five rounds.

TILDEN TO QUIT INTERNATIONAL PLAY THIS YEAR

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 25.—Big Bill Tilden will bid fond adieu to international tennis competition. After the current season is over, after 10 years of serious tennis filled with dramatic victories and equally dramatic defeats, Big Bill finally has had enough.

The lanky Philadelphia, six times holder of the national title, but for years of Davis Cup tennis, a dominant figure season after season on foreign courts, announces his approaching retirement from international play in an article, written by himself, in the June 1 issue of the magazine "Liberty."

Although ready to quit international competition, Big Bill disclaims emphatically any intention of quitting the game which he said he would play as long as his two wabbling legs will function, my aged and enfeebled arm will swing, and my age-dimmed eyes can see a ball.

The Philadelphia added that his status would continue to be amateur and that he had no thought of turning professional.

Tilden hopes to fill in his time with tennis exhibitions, with stage work and with newspaper articles. He has no hankering after an official position with the United States Lawn Tennis Association, even should he have a chance of obtaining one.

"I hope to be able to play for years in exhibitions at schools and colleges or in the public parks where I can feel that I am aiding in the development of our future champions," Big Bill said. "Not only have I no chance, but I have no burning desire to sit in the sacred seats of the U. S. L. T. A., my views are at variance with the traditions of the association but not with its ethics. I fear I would want to see too much progress, progress and liberalism in its administration. I am for the player, first, last and all the time."

Behind him Tilden will leave a legacy of wishes as yet not entirely fulfilled.

"I hope to see the Davis cup back in the United States. I hope to see Wilbur F. Coen Jr., champion of the world. I hope to see a real solution to the amateur problem. But above all I hope to see tennis played and played and played."

Women to Bowl Special Match To Decide Title

A special match to decide the singles championship in the Women's Interstate Bowling tournament will have to be rolled, following the performance of Mrs. Ruby Mee of St. Louis, last night, in tying Mrs. L. Sallinger of Kansas City with a score of 591. Mrs. Mee had games of 156, 226 and 209.

Last week Mrs. Sallinger turned in a score of 591. According to tournament rules, she will have to return from Kansas City to bowl off the tie for the diamond medal and cash award. In all other ties the high contestants divide the prize money.

In addition to starring in the singles, Mrs. Mee, with Ann Uhlen, led the doubles team with 1023. Mrs. Mee rolled 473 and Miss Uhlen 550.

The three final teams will bowl tonight and the final doubles and singles will be rolled tomorrow.

GIRL COMES WITHIN 3.4 INCH OF RECORD IN STANDING BROAD JUMP

With a leap of 8 feet 3 inches, Miss Junea Doer of Loretto Academy came within 3/4 of an inch of the American record for women in the standing broad jump, in an interclass track and field meet yesterday afternoon on the campus of the school. The record is 8 feet 3 1/4 inches, set by Miss Camilla Sable of New Jersey Normal.

A school record was broken, when Miss Dorothy Hackenyo made a baseball throw of 183 feet. Miss Hackenyo was high scorer, with three firsts, one second and one third for 10 points.

Services as Caddy in 1922 Netted Him Enough to Make First Tour, Smith Writes

By Horton Smith.

(Copyright, 1929.)

Soon after my fourteenth birthday, late in May, 1922, I began to show some form on the links that, for the first time, some of the elders at the Springfield, Mo., Country Club commented favorably on my play. Their remarks pleased me, but did not make me lose my sense of proportion. I knew that I was simply "a bright boy" at golf and that I had a long, long way to go before I could even hope to be a full-fledged champion.

As a matter of fact, I never had, or have, any championship dreams, though I always play to win with the best score possible. In 1922, I did not have the hope of becoming the best golfer at the Springfield Country Club.

Today I manage to compete interestingly with the Hagens, the Comptons, the Diegels and the Duncans of golf, and I look up to them all with profound respect; but none fills me with awe as did our Springfield experts—Dr. Paul R. Talbot, Norman Hinds, and the club's pro, Neil Crose—six or seven years ago. I learned much golf from them and from F. S. Naething.

Services Are in Demand. During the summer of 1922, I continued to occupy myself with my own game in the morning and the games of others in the afternoon. My best games were played at this time with my brother; with Dr. Paul R. Talbot, who won the Springfield Club championship a number of times, and with Norman Hinds, also a club champion. I caddied for Hinds when he won one club championship at Springfield.

My services as a caddy were in sufficient demand so that I was able to provide myself with golfing equipment.

Griffith Hurts Hand in BEATING FRIEDMAN. CHICAGO, May 25.—Jerry Tuffy Griffith of Sioux City, Ia., was nursing a damaged right hand today that may force the postponement of his proposed championship ship with Tommy Loughnan, world's light heavyweight titleholder.

Griffith injured his hand in making his debut as a heavyweight against Al Friedman of Boston in the Chicago Stadium last night. He will submit to an X-ray examination to determine the extent of the injury. Griffith had no trouble in defeating the Boston heavyweight. He upset him twice with sharp right crosses to the chin, scoring knockdowns in the first and fourth rounds.

INSTALLMENT LIV.

EVEN men were gathered at the table, with Prosper Standish so at a moment's notice, straining his ears to catch the quills and the points of the pen. The first of the points in which he was so interested, his head bent, his left hand resting on the table, was the one which he was watching his eyes. On a certain table-top lay another great sheet of paper, and on it was written in leather. It was that which Jasper knew without doubt, and which he had the impression of Records—and on it were written in clean pages was the signature of Cynthia Standish. For Fournace, binding them together and agree each with the other to join standing the public and to stand the public to this lawful contract. Cynthia and Fournace, freely consented to the same. And so, hands and souls in presence without doubt, in the presence of our Maker, and in the full understanding of the law, he pronounced this sacred of the law, nor has any other person right to set it aside or obstruct its consummation, except by representation of incontestable proof to the Officers of the Church and the people of the colony. And so, he said, any one who exists hereafter, hereinafter named, who enters entered into should be declared null and void."

[illegible]

You have been in our midst for months, lacking a few days at the time you have made man, my Jasper. This is the regular meeting of the Council, as you know, for the purpose of hearing complaints, requests of citizens, the apportioning and allotment of necessities, and the consideration of requests and so on. Your only interest in the action of the Council is a matter relating solely to

to you alone. The time now for us to pass upon your report already familiar with the situation insofar as it relates to the legitimacy of your claim to succeed to the late Philip Dimmedale's estate, both legal and physical, has been reached. You have been shown a desire to be a part of this colony and church. It meets with this Council to determine you are acceptable to every particular. The decision is hereby in your assurance. Your conduct has been sincere and earnest and we have not to be taken into question. We have had a vote on this. Prayer Binded. It is the opinion of the Council that the interest of the church are best to be served by devoting the privilege of association with us as a member of the church. I am sorry to say that you are a painful
debtor upon the church.
It is the judgment of the Council that you be required to depart from New England on the expiration of the month of March, and be re-admitted upon the first, if so pleased. This second day of November, 1844, was extended at your request to the fifteenth of this month. Silence followed the reading of the First Overseer, Jasper's name. He turned to stone. He was as ice. A bleak incredulity

TENNESSEE MILL STRIKE ENDS WHEN
WOMAN MEDIATOR
SUCCEEDS IN PLEA

Workers Accept Terms Offered by Company, but Union Is Not Mentioned in Final Compact.

FACTIONS ARE UNITED
BY YOUNG U. S. AGENT

Miss Anna Weinstock in 10 Days Makes Peace After Man Fails to Settle Six-Week Walkout.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 25.—A slim girl in blue looked down this afternoon from the platform of Elizabethton's old time revival tabernacle into 2000 upturned and expectant faces. "Go back," she said, "Go back to work. The way is clear. You can return with honor. I ask you to accept the company's terms." And they answered her with a mighty, thundering "aye" two hours later when the vote was taken.

The strike in the rayon mills is over. The strikers are going back to work on the terms offered by the company, but without discrimination. It is understood, against union members. Certain "undesirables" will not be taken back.

From violent, open warfare, from kidnappings, arson, bombings, dynamiting and a reign of terror, the green hills of Happy Valley will awaken tomorrow to their old time Sabbath peace.

And all because of a girl in blue.

Anna Weinstock is her name and she hails from Washington. One would call her a flower in a first glance—but one would look the second time. A debonair young woman, trim and trim, with a city air and clear blue eyes that look frank and level into your own. How she ever got into the Federal Government's service as a mediator will remain a mystery, so far as her explaining is concerned, but there she is—at 23 the best of Uncle Sam's strike adjusters and the first of her sex to join the force.

Man Hank, Woman Success. She came down into Happy Valley two weeks ago from Washington with orders to end the strike. A man who came before her, Charles G. Wood, had failed. She came quietly and unobtrusively, registered under a convenient name, plume at Johnson City, and for 10 days even the leaders didn't know the Government had a representative on the scene.

Quietly, efficiently, she set about the grim business of dodging bullets to get terms on which the warring elements could meet. And she got them. Here they are:

1. All former employees of the rayon mills shall register for employment at once.
2. If the employee is not reinstated, he or she will be given a new personnel officer, presiding as "an impartial person."
3. Personnel Officer to Decide.
4. Willson is to be the sole judge of the merits of each case and to decide what shall be done. His decision shall be final.
5. The company agrees not to discriminate against any former employee because of his or her affiliation with the union, provided the employee's activities were legitimate and were not carried on at the plant.
6. The mills management agrees to meet a committee of employees for the purpose of adjusting any grievances.

Nothing is said about the formation of a new union, and nothing about recognition of the union when and if formed. This is the one left out because it was forgotten. The omission is deliberate and purposeful. It is, in fact, the decision to return. The way was wide open to form a new union and the labor leaders here tonight, although they said nothing, were waiting for the strike to begin in April after a previous walkout in March had been settled. The strike was over wage comparison. About 5500 workers were affected.

Brings Two Factions Together.

For the last fortnight, Miss Weinstock has been America's
